

Basketball Workshop Franchises Now Available Nationwide Part-Time Franchise Opportunities Available for Coaches, Former Players

Since 1998, former college basketball player and high school coach, Dave Guinane, founder of The Basketball Workshop, has worked with thousands of high school and collegiate players taking their game to the next level through his innovative total improvement system. Now, The Basketball Workshop is offering franchise opportunities to former college players and basketball coaches nationwide.

As youth sports becomes more and more competitive, many parents are finding that one-on-one training programs like those the Basketball Workshop offers can be the difference when players are competing for spots on the high school basketball team or college scholarships.

The Basketball Workshop's targeted four-week training sessions help improve a player's individual skills in all areas of the game, including shooting, ball-handling, offensive footwork and defense. In addition, The Basketball Workshop offers a variety of Summer Clinics, such as the popular Point Guard or Post Camp, to help refine player's skills in a particular area of the game.

All of these training sessions and clinics offer The Basketball Workshop franchisee with ample opportunities to earn a good income, whether it is as a part-time venture, or a full-time business.

The Basketball Workshop franchise includes:
